to lee on our gard wee fall the triall it will be to lais mother no one can tell be cause it brings a reproach on the laws of christ dear child be faithfull and lead no one have to say what doo ye more then others our friends are bold well gard the Bodwell is hear to day and he apeares well many will many Er if she can lead him doo what he will and it dont doo any good to say any thing more to any one for he must have it him self so we will let him alone tha are a ting to hunt blow but I think cant tha mean to finech the bl by the a fuss and I shall be be glad thein is a revival in carlton but I have not heard very mutch about it yeat but I hope your dadey will find some comfort and will be more faithfull and I hope that tabnage may lee brought to jeas as deed did and to manefest to the world that he is a true penetent Soffe gilet that you are under tyeds wife to me and lead me no when you doo mean to come home and I whish you a ware hear when I make a felse ment with mes blow doos well and will befriend me you will se that blows leader has ben wroat a great while so good night blanch Leya

Mr. Amos. A Phelps Dear Sir

I have lately returned from the west spent the winter very agreeable and Pleased To hear That your situation in life is Pleasant and agreeable. I concludes that I would help fill a letter For you and hope it will be the means of a long communication betwixt us though thousands of miles may seperate us. I have no great news to write, only the busines in the western country is much more forward Than here I think of finishing the stone work to the aqueduct as soon as august business I hope will go smoother than did last season.

All the young Laydies I was acquainted with To the west are well, some that I was more Particular acquainted with are maried So we see that it stands us in hand to have a care else an girl Jump off and we unperceived by them However there is as good fish in the sea as has ben caught

I should be extremely well Pleased to receive a letter and if any thing new write it and I will be Punctual to answer it.

Yours To the bone

Joel Clough
